Worship Theme: Kindness.

This week we reflect on the human virtue of kindness. According to Book Two of Aristotle's "Rhetoric" it is defined as virtue, being "helpful towards someone in need, not in return for anything, nor for the advantage of the helper himself, but for that of the person helped". Jack Kerouac said "one man practicing kindness in the wilderness is worth all the temples in the wide world". In a school like ours kindness spreads. For example, one act of kindness in the playground that others are able to see and share is copied and emulated by many. An act of kindness is like a categorical imperative in the sense of, it is something good so therefore we should do it, that is be kind. When we "see" an act of kindness that is exactly what happens. We want to be kind and we show kindness to others. H.Evans
